Notes From Japan War Lords and Medicine

THIS morning's mail brings me a bundle of newspapers from Tokyo, Japan. They are part of the January file of the Tokyo's daily English paper, the Japan Advertiser; and they contain very complete reports on what the Japanese leaders think and say about the white powers which are "standing by" during Japan's war with China.

Asked about the British attitude toward Japan, Admiral Ryocho Nakamura said:

"The British attitude toward Japan has completely altered since the Washington conference, held after the World war. Why? In a word, it is because Britain fears Japan's southward advance."

"When Britain concluded its alliance with Japan, Russia was very much in its way. . . . The Great War rendered both Russia and Germany powerless to harm Britain, which then looked around and found Japan as strongest power in the Orient. It was also expanding to the south, and that made Britain pause. . . .

Annihilation Threatens
Trapped Forces of Gen.

VICTORIOUS SWEEP

Meanwhile, Tokyo Hints
at Naval Building Figures "Unofficially"

By the Associated Press.

On central China's battle fields the conquering Japanese army Monday seemed to be closing the only exit from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's life-line corridor, with the threatened annihilation of 400,000 men.

The Japanese push from the north and south had all but trapped the Chinese armies within the corridor containing the Lanchow railroad.

A narrow bottle-neck to the west was the only chance of escape from the crushing impact of the Japanese war machine.

At Tokyo, a foreign office spokesman intimated Japan might be willing to provide naval construction information if asked "unofficially."

The spokesman did not amplify beyond saying such information would not be "legally binding."

Spanish insurgent headquarters received Generalissimo Franco was massing reinforcements to build his army up to one million men for a spring offensive designed to give him victory and end the war.

February 28 Final Auto License Date

No Extension Legally Possible—Many Owners to Pay Penalty

Automobile owners of Hope and Hope county were again warned Monday that February 28 is the final date to purchase city and state license without penalty.

Deputy Revenue Agent Allen Ship said that approximately 800 state licenses had been issued to date. Last year the Hope office issued approximately 2,000 licenses.

February 28 was fixed by an act of the legislature as the final date to purchase tags without penalty.

City Treasurer Charles Heynerson said Monday that approximately 175 persons had purchased city license. He issued 350 tags last year.

A penalty of $1 will be assessed delinquents from March 1 through March 10. After March 10 a penalty of $2.50 will be added.

City tags can be purchased now for $2.50 for the entire year.

High Winds Halt Soviet Rescue Flights to Pole

TROMSOE, Norway. (AP)—High winds Monday halted plans of the Soviet ice-breaker Taimyr to send planes to the rescue of four scientists of the "North Pole Camp."

The crew of Tony Palmucci, against Bradford Borden, assault and battery.

Tony, a waiter at the exclusive Stag Club, accused Borden, president of the club, of assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Palmucci's testimony:

"This man Borden beat me up because he had to pay for 21 dinners served at the annual Stag Club banquet. I told him to go to hell and to shut out for the whole year, but all 21 dinners, including Borden, really caused the trouble anyway."

"They decided one of their own number should pay the entire bill. They told me I should commence counting the company around the table and every seventh man would rise from his seat until all were counted out but one. That guy was to pay for the whole works."

"Borden has done me a lot of dirty tricks lately, so I decided to make him the goat. He knew I counted so he would be the payoff man and after the party he beat me up."

400 Papers

NEW YORK. (AP)—O. O. McIntyre, whose New York column was printed by newspapers throughout the country, died Monday at his apartment.

He would have been 54 Friday. He died at 2 a. m., but his death did not become known immediately.

He was born at Pittsburg, Mo., and started his column in 1912, which by 1937 was syndicated in 400 papers.

Survivors include his widow.

British Dedicate Fort at Singapore

Guns Will Shoot 50 Miles
—Americans Only Foreign Guests

SINGAPORE. (AP)—With American officers as "unofficial" observers, Great Britain inaugurated the most powerful guns in the world Monday, strengthening her naval strategy in the war-torn Orient.

Three American warships, the cruisers Trenton, Memphis and Milwaukee under the command of Rear-Admiral Julius C. Townsend, were the only "foreign guests," a fact authoritative circles considered significant.

Intense precautions have been taken to prevent espionage at the inaugural ceremony for the $150,000,000 "Gibraltar of the East" which took 15 years to build. Hand-picked guests will be under the watchful eyes of special police the entire time and will be allowed to enter only restricted areas.

The United States cruisers arrived Sunday from Australia where they had attended the recent centenary celebration. After formal gun salutes from British warships, Admiral Townsend exchanged official calls with British Vice-Admiral Sir Alexander Ramsay, commander-in-chief of the East Indies station. A mutual array of Britain's fighting strength in the Orient was present.

The naval base controls the empire's vital link between the East and West. Its great guns, with ranges up to 50 miles, command the narrow straits linking the Pacific and Indian oceans.

Taking part in the ceremonies were 24 warships of the East Indies and China squadrons, native and British troops of the Singapore garrison with units of royal artillery, and seven bombardment squadrons of the royal Air Force with their transport planes.

Robbery and Arson Suspected in Fire on Saturday Night

Miles Downs' House Burns

FUEL OIL IS FOUND

Former Officer Believes
Someone Cut Screen
and Fired House

A robbery and arson theory entered Monday into the investigation of the burning early Sunday morning of the Miles Downs residence at the corner of Spring Hill road and Park drive.

Damage by fire and winter was estimated at $2,000 of which $1,000 was to household contents.

Downs told officers that he feared foul play. The investigation, which is incomplete, showed that several articles, mostly foodstuffs, were missing from the house.

Screen Is Cut

The screen of a rear door had been cut. An oil can which was left on the back porch, was found inside the house. The top of the can was off. The can was empty. It had contained fuel oil, firemen said.

The investigation showed that the blaze originated about the center of the house, inside a closet. The blaze burned through the floor and then spread upward through the ceiling, damaging the house and contents to the extent of about $2,000 before the Hope fire department brought the blaze under control.

Downs, who lives alone, was away from home at the time the fire started. Chief of Police John W. Ridgill reported that Downs, a former Hope officer, was with members of the police department late Saturday night and until the blaze was discovered early Sunday morning.

Was Helping Police

Ridgill said that Downs was aiding officers in a search for Elijah Turner, negro ex-convict, who is at liberty. It is recalled that Turner, with two bullet wounds in the body, rose up from a bed of pain at Josephine hospital and escaped wearing a nightgown and blanket.

Ridgill said that Downs was being taken to his home early Sunday morning by Policemen Claude Stuart and Hugh Bearden, and as they neared the Downs residence they discovered it was afire.

Damage to the house, owned by A. D. Middlebrooks, was partly covered by insurance. Loss of the household contents was partly covered by insurance.

Chief Ridgill said Policemen Bearden and Stuart were investigating the case. There have been no arrests.

Sale of KTHS Is Again Sustained

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Deal With T.

LITTLE ROCK. (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday denied the petition of the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce for a rehearing of the tribunal's recent decision holding the chamber's former board of directors had authority to sell radio station KTHS to Col. T. H. Barton of El Dorado and his broadcasting company.

The court also held Pope chancery court was correct in its assumption that its jurisdiction superceded that of Oklahoma county (Oklahoma) district court wherein the principals involved were in the geographical domain of the Arkansas court.

The decision upheld the Pope court's decree in a child custody case.

Bailey Unable to Make Bond Trip

Pope and Taylor Go to
New York—Doctors Keep
Bailey at Home

LITTLE ROCK. (AP)—Acting on advice of physicians Governor Bailey Monday canceled tentative plans for making a personal trip to New York in connection with his proposed high-way refinancing, leaving negotiations with Eastern bankers in the hands of Walter L. Pope and Beloit Taylor.

Pope and Taylor left Sunday night for New York to discuss plans on issuance of new low-rate interest bonds for exchange or sale as means of retiring the present bond issue of approximately 145 million dollars.

Ray Gets 'Life' in Murder of Wife

Jury Cuts Death Sentence
in New Trial Ordered on Appeal

MARSHALL, Ark. (AP)—Hollis Ray, 51, former prosperous farmer and stockman of Sevier county, whose fantastic story of his wife's death was heard in circuit court here Saturday, must serve a life term in the penitentiary. This was the verdict of a jury which deliberated nearly 12 hours on the punishment to be meted out, and announced in open court Sunday.

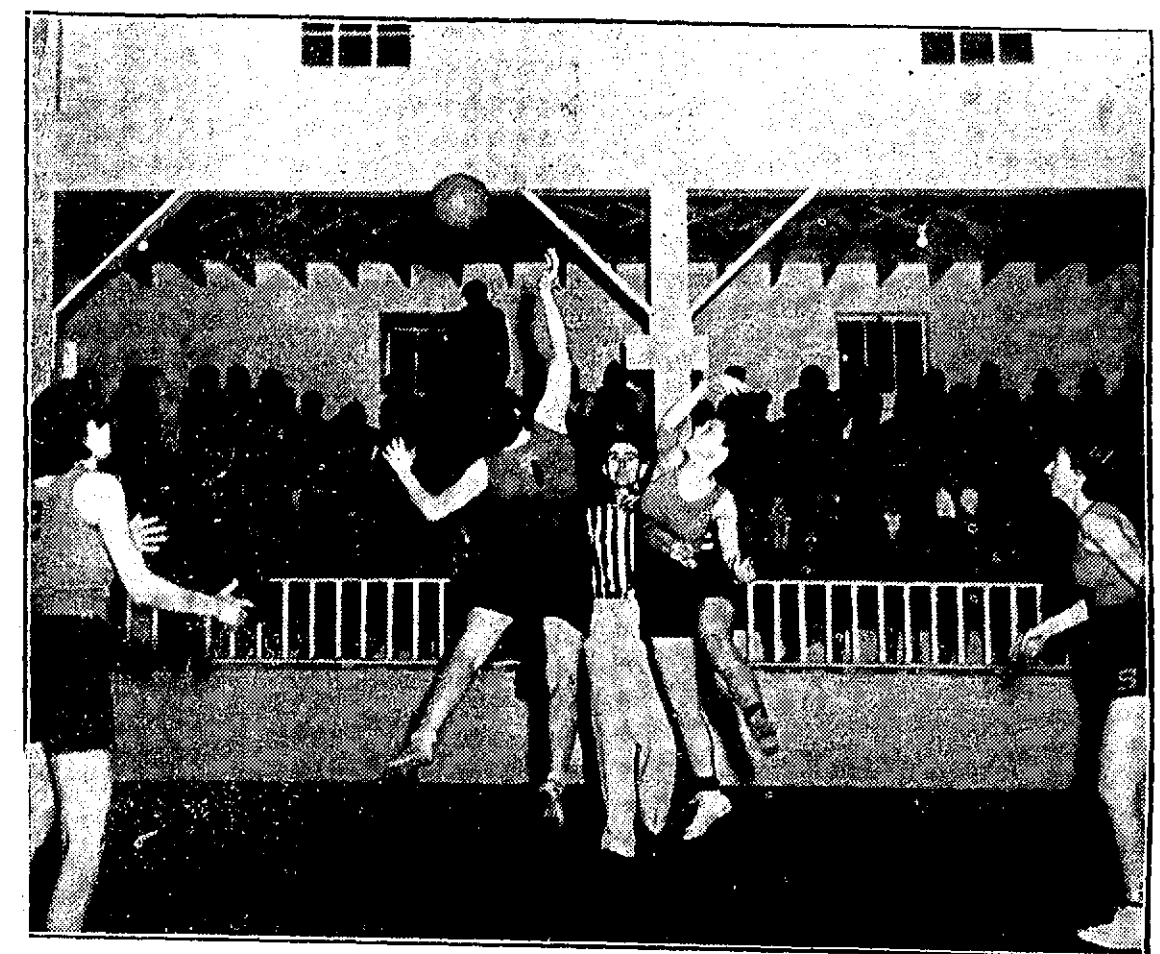

The Supreme Court, on appeal, granted Ray a new trial because it held the lower court erred in instructing the jury, permitting a verdict of first degree murder only when it should have permitted the jury to find Ray guilty of a lesser degree of murder. The high court's opinion held that at his new trial, Ray would have to plead guilty.

Ray told the jury that he did not poison his wife, although he gave a bottle of strychnine to her after he had told her he had taken a potion of the poison. He declared that she expressed a desire to die "if he also were going to commit suicide. He said he watched her drink the poison."

ARMS CONFERENCE

Sen. King Urges It—Rep.
Fish Suggests Parity
Be Given Japan

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The administration's new farm program received senate approval Monday and now goes to the White House for the president's signature.

The senate vote was 56 to 31.

Urges Arms Conference

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Senator King, Utah Democrat, asked congress Monday to instruct the president to call an international arms conference.

Shortly before King proposed this in a resolution, Representative Fish, New York Republican, suggested before the house naval committee that the new naval conference should grant Japan naval parity with the United States.

McAdoo Hits Farm Bill

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Senator McAdoo, California Democrat, describing the administration's farm bill as "revolutionary," said Monday that its enforcement would create "such hubbub" that the legislation would be repealed at the next congress session.

McAdoo spoke as opponents of the proposal carried on an 11th hour attack before the final vote scheduled Monday afternoon.

Bobcats Will Play 3 Games This Week

"Tarzan" Green to Show
Here Monday With Laneburg Team

Three games are left on the Hope High School basketball schedule before the Bobcats prepare for the District 10 cage tournament.

The three games will be played at Hope this week, the first one Monday night when Laneburg High School comes here, the second one Thursday night against Prescott, and the final Friday night with Texarkana furnishing the opposition at Hope.

The real attraction of the Laneburg team is their star center, Norman "Tarzan" Green, an athlete who has been referred to as the "perfect specimen of manhood."

Green, sophomore center, towers six feet and three inches. He weighs more than 190 pounds, and is the leader and star of the Laneburg team.

Green made the all-state junior basketball team last year. Broad-shouldered and with a well-proportioned body, Green is exceptionally fast on the basketball court.

Coach Roy Harkness, who said the Bobcats "hadn't been facing so well financially because of small attendance at games," appealed for a large crowd to the Laneburg team in action.

The Bobcat-Laneburg contest will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock and the game will be concluded at 8:30 p. m. The admission is 10 and 25 cents.

Two Cases Settled in Circuit Court

Barney C. Green Awarded
$3,000 Judgment in Injury Suit

Two civil suits were disposed of in a one-day session of Hempstead circuit court at Washington Monday.

Barney C. Green was awarded $3,000 consent judgment in a personal injury suit brought against the Byrd Construction company. The suit was originally filed asking damages of $16,000.

The suit was dismissed and then recovered as a $3,000 consent judgment. Green was injured in an accident four miles east of Gordon.

G. S. Jernigan, State Bank Commissioner in charge of the Planters Bank & Trust Company of Nashville, insolvent, was awarded judgment of $1,023.50 by default in a suit against C. F. Epton.

The suit resulted from failure to pay a note held by the bank.

Municipal court at Hope was not in session Monday, all cases being set for trial Tuesday morning.

Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Clothing Came First as Decoration But Now It's Chiefly for Protection

(No. 419)
The fundamental needs of mankind are food, fuel, clothing, shelter, and medical and dental care. We heard a great deal about the hygiene of the body from the point of view of housing, nutrition and warmth, but seldom is there serious attention given to the hygiene of our clothing. Most people wear clothing without ever thinking about why they wear it. The various types of scientists have different ideas on this subject. Some insist that human beings first adopted clothing for decorative purposes. Others insist that clothing came because of modesty, and the last view is that we wear clothing for protection.

As we look on the history of the development of mankind, it seems most reasonable to believe that clothing came first as a decoration. Exactly as various animals have highly colored plumage to attract the opposite sex, so probably also primitive man began tasteful things to his body as a means of attraction. According to the Bible, fig leaves were first put on to satisfy ideas of modesty. In earlier days men probably wore largely in warm climates. Now that mankind has spread throughout the world, it is reasonable to believe that a primary purpose for clothing today is protection.

Indeed it is reasonable to believe that mankind could not have spread from warm areas to cold areas had there not been the development of clothing.

We know today that man is a warm-blooded animal and that he must surround himself with warmth if he is to live. Clothing is the means by which he holds the warmth within his body. Coverings do not create heat, but they do diminish the rate at which heat is lost from the body.

Clothing also may affect the circulation of the blood, the rate of breathing, the posture of the body and the internal organs. For instance, tight garters or tight hats will interfere with the circulation in the legs or in the skull. Heavy clothing may be such a weight on the body as to inhibit movement. Tight corsets interfere with breathing. Tight belts may constrict the internal organs.

In general the whole tendency of modern clothing is to get away from tightness and to make the clothing truly a protection against loss of heat without any of the dangers to the tissues that have been mentioned.

Of course fashions have much more to do with the choices of clothing by both men and women than hygienic considerations. This is unfortunate. Probably a certain amount of education of those who design the styles as to the hygienic considerations that prevail would make it possible for them to design new types of clothing which would meet with their ideas of art and which would not at the same time interfere with the health of the body.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Kindly Leadership Is Essential for True Discipline.

Raising a Family—No. 13
"Why must I go in, mom? I don't want to."

"You never come when you're called, Johnny. Do as I say."

This is probably the question that bothers more parents than all the other matters of family raising put together. Obedience, and, of course, discipline.

It did not used to be so. Not so much, anyway. Mothers told their children to do things, or not to do them, and that just about settled it. If this sounds as though the good old times were perfect, and boys and girls were all nice little "yes" people, I hurry to correct it. There was more obedience but there was more unhappiness, too—and more craft.

There is so much to be said about discipline that we shall have to take it step by step and talk over subjects as they come. The first, however, should be an untangling of meanings. Discipline does not mean punishment. It implies, rather, instilling in the boy or girl a sense of obligation to do right and to conform to orders with, or without, the spoken word.

Discipline comes from "disciple." And "disciple" means pupil. "One who believes and practices the teachings of another."

One authority explains that discipline is the strict and REGULAR mental and moral training and development of character. Another gives "submission to control." The last one names both, but adds as a corollary, "corrective measures." Which does mean punishment, doesn't it? But punishment is a corrective for undisciplined. It can be both constructive and destructive. It is only useful when it leaves the child better off than he was before.

If there is to be a pupil, there must be a teacher. And the first quality of a good teacher is leadership. Mother, you need not feel abashed by this rather martial term. You need not put on helmet or spurs in order to qualify. That quiet, gentle voice of yours need not be lifted, even. You can be a first class leader by just using sign language, if you like—just a nod and a smile. All the children need to know is that YOU KNOW. And that you mean what you say when you say it.

Your best captains will be the children themselves. Once they know you to be fair, and that you understand all their little troubles and temptations, they will be more anxious to do your bidding.

Slipping in and Shooting in Are Two Ways to Get in Movies

HOLLYWOOD.—Hal Roach has recruited about that movie career for his 18-year-old daughter, Margaret. Ever since she was a child and romped with the players in early "Our Gang" comedies, she has wanted to be a screen actress. But Roach said no-school first, and then she could make up her mind again.

So she went to finishing school, studied voice, and enrolled in the Ben Bard School of the Theater. Talent scouts saw her in several productions and a few offered tests. A test she made recently was for a small part in "Marie Antoinette," with Norma Shearer. The verdict hasn't been handed down on that one.

Meanwhile a pretty girl called Diane Rochelle appeared as one of the singers on the "Swiss Miss" set at the Roach studio. Only Laurel and Hardy, the stars, and Assistant Director Hal Roach, Jr., knew her identity. Diane is Margaret Roach's middle name.

The secret was revealed when young Roach bawled her out for being late when he should have known that she had been keeping an appointment with the hairdresser. Diane told her brother to go climb a tree and quit acting so important. Everyone knew who she was, then, because ordinary actresses don't talk like that to touch assistant directors.

Unless he can divide himself into twins, like the amocha, Milland won't be able to make half the films which have been mentioned for him this

CAST OF CHARACTERS
POLLY: C. E. L. S. T., heroine, stranded in London when war breaks out.
JERRY: WHITFIELD, hero, the Yankee who sees her through.
CABELL: BANKS, privateer captain.

CHAPTER XI
AS far as the two Americans in the prison hold were concerned, the British brig Sunrise was ironically named. The morning was well advanced before the hatch was opened and marines appeared with food. They also brought two hammocks, which they tossed down.

They persuaded the marines to let them eat their breakfast on the companion ladder. The cool fresh air that reached them aroused their appetites and caused them to approach the meal with a certain anticipation.

"There's nothing like being hungry. Oh, I should say, too hungry," Cabell remarked. "The British Navy's discovered it can make any meal acceptable by giving you not enough of it."

"There's something to what you say," Jerry agreed. If there had been a full cup of the rancid coffee or a man-size portion of the grayish meat stew and rocklike bread, he could not have downed it.

Cabell said, "This is good compared to what they get at Dartmoor and on the prison hulks. I talked to two Frenchmen at Dartmoor and they said that, after confinement in England. They told me tales!"

"Quite belittlin' 'is Majesty's chow and clean it up!" said one of the marines at the top of the ladder. "The captain's asked to 'ave a look at the two of ye."

AS Jerry went up the ladder and into the bright sunlight of the quarter deck he reeled and stumbled, so that he had to steady himself by laying a hand on the shoulder of Cabell Banks.

The two prisoners were taken aft to the officers' cabin and thrust in with a nice flourish of bayonets. They found themselves standing before a heavy red-faced man who sat in a large mahogany chair and had no expression at all on his face.

"Which of you is Cabell Banks of Boston?"

"I, sir, and with three days' growth of beard."

The captain gave Cabell a distrustful glance, for he'd been warned that Americans were great jokers and would rib you while you walked them off a plank. "Stick to the subject, Mr. Banks. My first lieutenant has made note that your father owns merchantmen sailing out of Boston but that you yourself are not a skipper."

"Accurate, sir. I was merely a passenger on the brigantine Hardy. I took the voyage chiefly to snap my fingers at Mr. James Madison of Virginia who had declared our Boston port closed in April."

"Indeed?" The captain's face almost assumed an expression. "Then you may welcome a challenge to assert that feeling more strongly, Mr. Banks. You'll be offered a commission as third lieutenant in His Majesty's Navy, with service on the Sunrise. A promotion from hold to officers' quarters in three days' time, Mr. Banks! Not so bad, eh?"

"Sir," said Cabell Banks, "I can't accept it. My country happens to be at war with yours. I believe you have overrated my feeling against President Madison. For two days I've had time to ruminate and ponder over that phrase 'freedom of the seas.' I've chewed the cud, as we say in Massachusetts. These hands that I once used for finger-snapping at President Madison, I now use for applause." Whereupon he pounded his slender, well-kept hands together with such vigor that curious faces appeared at portholes to see what went on.

WHILE the captain was frowning at this strange performance and trying to seize the situation by the tail, so to speak, Cabell Banks stepped aside and leaned axily against a bulkhead. "Your turn now, Whitfield," he said to Jerry, quite as if he himself were conducting the interview. He was an angry young man, and therefore a reckless one. It did not help Jerry Whitfield's cause in the least.

"Who are you and where were you born?" Captain Steel shouted at Jerry.

"Jeremiah Whitfield, sir. Born in Gloucester, a port in—"

"So you admit your English birth."

"English birth? Never, sir! I'm American. Gloucester's in Massachusetts."

The captain was writing busily and humming to himself, like a contented deaf man. "Where was your father born?"

"In Cambridge, sir, a town near—"

"That will do. And your mother?"

"Near Manchester, in Massachusetts!" Jerry shouted. "All those places are in Massachusetts, in America!"

"Don't shout, my man. . . . I have here a map of the colonies of America, Jeremiah Whitfield, and none of those places are listed. You will, however, find them all on the map of England."

"Let me look at the American map, sir," Jerry requested. "I'll surely find you Gloucester. It's a fair sized port—"

The captain gave him what was undeniably a map of the North American Continent. It was possibly 100 years old, a navigation map showing rivers and bays as they were known at that time. Some of the colonies were crudely outlined, all were highly colored. But no towns were marked except Quebec, Toronto, Boston, New York and Philadelphia and a few others.

"This is no fair map!" Jerry exclaimed. "I'm American for three generations. No, four on my father's side. This is a dirty outrage, and I protest! I know what you're up to."

"You have lost your head, Jeremiah Whitfield, but I have not lost mine. It's a common occurrence for deserters to claim to be American. You were brought to this ship last night as a deserter from His Majesty's Navy. All signs substantiate that. Everything about you corroborates that—those towns you too hastily mentioned, your English appearance, your being in London at loose ends."

There was an impudent laugh from Cabell Banks. "And don't forget that he speaks English, Captain! That's very incriminating."

"Hold your tongue, Mr. Banks." His large red face bent over the cable while he wrote busily for a moment. Then, "Jeremiah Whitfield, I sentence you to 20 strokes, and service before the mast on His Majesty's brig Sunrise."

"You'll not have him whipped, Captain Steel!" It was Cabell Banks again. This time his voice carried an exaggerated drawl, very Yankee. "He happens to be an officer of a ship, and officers are not whipped. On that point our two navies agree."

"What ship, Mr. Banks?"

"The privateer Revenge, sir, that my father will give me as soon as we make our escape from this vessel. . . . Come, Lieutenant Whitfield!"

Jerry burst into crazy laughter, and the two most reckless young men in America walked out of the cabin arm in arm. Behind them they left a British naval officer too outraged, temporarily, to deal with them.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Exploiting a Rich Adventure Vein

In "The Fate of the Grosvenor" (Covet-Friede, $2.75), Jonathan Lee exploits the somewhat of a vein which bore such rich dividends for Northoff and Hall in the "Bounty" series.

That is to say that he builds a novel around the facts of a great sea disaster. And if "The Fate of the Grosvenor" hardly comes up to the "Bounty" trilogy, it is nevertheless a substantial and meaty novel which tells a fine story of shipwreck and adventure.

The solid historical facts that were lying ready to his hand were impressive enough, in all conscience.

The Grosvenor was a British East India ship which went on a reef near the Cape of Good Hope somewhere in the 1790's, with upwards of 100 people aboard. The wrecked vessel speedily broke up in the surf, and the survivors got ashore with very little in the way of food, clothing or weapons. They were on a desolate coast some hundreds of miles from the nearest European settlement.

A Valentine

A little love,
A little kiss,
A bit of verse
As slight as this—
A ribbon knot,
Some paper lace,
A chubby cupid's
Laughing face.

A wistful girl,
A gallant lad,
A waltz tune that
Is slightly mad,
Add starlight, pale
As silver wine,
And then you have
A valentine!

Stamp News

To stimulate the mentally ill, the New York Psychiatric Institute and Hospital has introduced stamp collecting as part of its regular occupational therapy work, according to Dr. Nolan D. C. Lewis, director. Already the hobby is said to have proved valuable to children given albums.

The long battle to win legislation permitting reproduction of United States stamps in catalogs, albums, magazines and newspapers was climaxed when the Hayden-Duffy bill passed the House and was transmitted to the President for his signature. The Senate had passed it at the last session.

Once signed, regulations will be announced by the Treasury and Post Office departments.

British stamp dealers are reported taking steps to have the new George VI colonial stamps distributed over a period of several months. Crown agents were reported ready to release all issues during the next two months. These stamps comprise some 300 varieties with a face value of about $180.

The Salvador issue commemorating the 150th anniversary of the U. S. Constitution will now be delayed perhaps five months. It was slated for issue March 1.

International Stamp Review, published and edited weekly in St. Joseph, Mo., by Don Houseworth, long identified with the hobby, is the latest publication in the philatelic field. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Wandered." Mrs. Edwin Stewart closed the program playing the "Sonata in F Major" by Mozart. Mrs. Kolb's discussion of the study was of unusual interest. During the business period reports were given from the various committees and plans were made for a tea on March 17 at the home of Mrs. J. R. Williams on South Main street. The next meeting will be the regular quarterly night meeting at the home of Mrs. J. C. Carlton on February 25, when a most beautiful ensemble program will be given.

A meeting was held at the city hall February 9 for the purpose of organizing a Girls' Scout Council, with 33 present. The meeting was conducted by Miss Beryl Henry who gave a splendid talk on Girl Scout work, impressing the importance of building for the future. Short talks were also given by Mrs. E. F. McFadden and Mrs. Chad Hall. The Girl Scouts are represented in the city by four interesting groups and the council will meet on the fourth Wednesday of each month for the purpose of hearing reports from each group. Officers elected were as follows: Commissioner, Mrs. Robert Campbell; vice commissioner, Mrs. Tullison; treasurer, Mrs. Chas. Harrell; secretary, Mrs. Frank Heurne. A Girl Scout hut is being erected in the Fair park.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heurne had as week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sharp and little son of Mooringsport, La.

Some time back I gave an excerpt from O. O. McIntyre's column as follows: "It is the hour when the slender cord of life so often snaps. The hour when night throws off its shadowy cloak to become another day. Everything seems portentous. One is riding a wisp of a world that has gone, and a world being born." This morning when the news came over the radio that McIntyre's slender cord of life had snapped, the above lines came into my mind, along with another thought—How very much I would miss his daily chats, for he had that rare quality of saying things directly to his readers and of which you had often dreamed of saying, but just didn't, and we just can't help believing.

County Unit Plan of Voting Illegal

Tennessee Supreme Court Throws Out Bill Striking Boss Crump

Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—The Tennessee Supreme Court over the week-end invalidated Tennessee's county unit plan for nominating candidates for governor, United States senator and public utilities commissioner and reinstated the direct vote primary.

El Crump, head of the Memphis political machine against which the unit law was aimed, declared that the decision meant defeat of Gov. Gordon Browning for re-nomination in the Democratic primary August 4.

The governor called an extra session of the legislature last October to enact the unit law after he and Crump had quarreled.

Browning refused to comment on the court's decision. It had been reported that if the county unit system was thrown out he would call another extra session to pass a law that would come within the court's ruling.

The court, in a 4-to-1 decision, denounced a provision of the law that prevented a county from having more unit votes than the equivalent of one-eighth of one per cent of its population. Each county was allowed one unit vote for each 100 popular votes cast in the preceding gubernatorial election, but with the limitation aimed at the city of Memphis.

"In our form of government a large vote in a constitutional election cannot be regarded as an evil and dealt with as such under the police power of the state," said the majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Crawford Green. "Universal exercise of the right of suffrage must be regarded as the ideal support of democratic institutions."

The population limitation on unit votes was described as "an arbitrary abridgement of the rights of citizens of the counties affected and accordingly unconstitutional and void."

"The provision for the county unit basis and the provision for the one-eighth of one per cent limitation are inseparable," the opinion continued.

The effect of the unit system would have been to reduce the tremendous voting power of Memphis, which frequently has been the deciding factor in Democratic primaries. Under the population limitation, Memphis' unit

BACK ON THE OLD HOME "LOT"

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—The sparring match between Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. and James Cagney, which has been going on for two years in and out of courts, has been amicably settled, and Cagney returns to work at the Warner Studios very shortly. In a joint statement Jack L. Warner said:

"We welcome Cagney back to the fold. We have always had a warm spot for him, and will make even greater efforts to produce the finest pictures we have ever made with him."

"My sole interest," said Cagney, "is, as it has always been, to make good pictures. I return to the Warner Studio confident that I shall be afforded every opportunity to realize this."

Cagney will be co-starred with his old friend and cinema partner, Pat O'Brien, in "Boy Meets Girl," a film version of the big Broadway stage hit.

vote would have been the equivalent of 33,400 popular votes, as contrasted with the more than 60,000 recorded there in the Democratic primary for governor in 1936.

Wright Guilty in Wife, Pal Deaths

But Sanity of California Slayer Remains to Be Determined

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—A jury that sat through the month-long trial of Paul A. Wright, 33, for the slaying of his wife and friend, convicted him over the week-end on two manslaughter counts that could send him to prison for 20 years.

But the task of the four women and eight men who decided the former airport executive was "conscious" of the act when he killed Evelyn McBride Wright and John Kimmel last November 9, was not completed.

Monday it will sit again to hear a trial of Wright on his plea of not guilty by reason of insanity. On this plea there still was a chance Wright might be freed of the slayings he said he committed after he caught his wife and friend in an abnormal embrace on the piano bench in his palatial Glendale home.

If the jury finds Wright was temporarily insane then, but sane now, he will be freed. If it decided he still is insane, then Superior Judge Ingall Bull can commit him to an asylum. But if the jury finds he was sane, the court may impose sentence.

CLUB NOTES

Hinton
The Hinton Home Demonstration club held their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, February 8, in the home of Mrs. R. E. Adams. The meeting was opened by singing two songs, "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Mrs. Lynn Jones gave scripture reading from 7th chapter of Matthew. Prayer by Mrs. R. E. Adams. Nine members answered roll call by telling their home improvement done this month. Special subjects discussed were home improvement and community activities.

The club was dismissed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, after which the hostess invited everyone to the dining room and served coconut cake and coffee.

The next meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. George Ellledge.

Green Laseter
The Green Laseter Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. Earl Russ with seven members and Miss Rouse present.

The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock. Miss Rouse led the devotion, reading the 21st Psalm, after which the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison.

As this was the first meeting of the year, new officers and leaders were elected as follows: Mrs. J. T. Cumbie, president; Mrs. A. M. Blevins, vice president; Mrs. Riley Lewallen, secretary; Mrs. Faye Lewallen, reporter; Mrs. A. A. Albritton, song and recreation leader.

Miss Rouse had charge of the recreation period which was enjoyed by all. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. M. E. Perkins, February 24.

Porkers to Meet Baylor and S. M. U.

Arkansas Leads Conference With Eight Wins, and No Losses

By the Associated Press
Unbeaten Arkansas could tell Monday by a glance at the schedule that this is only the beginning in its drive for a Southwest Conference title. Eight of its 12 scheduled games played—and all of them won—the Razorbacks still must meet a couple of tough teams, Baylor and Southern Methodist. Flavored by a stay-at-home schedule necessitated in early season by the switch of Rice's two games to Fayetteville, Arkansas leaves the Ozarks this week for a pair of games against second-place Baylor at Waco that easily could make the race look like an omelette.

The Porkers, with Don Lockard, leading scorer, and Jack Robbins, roving guard, abetted in their basket clanking by long Jim Benton, won two more last week by burying Texas, first under the record-breaking score of 74-to-38 and then by a hairline 42-to-37 decision.

Down at Waco they are laying plans for the largest egg crowd in Bruin history for the Friday and Saturday night games. Fans will be turned away by the thousands when the Porkers face a Bruin team that has been licked only once—by two points in an overtime tussle with the Texas Aggies.

Southern Methodist, on edge after putting away Rice and Texas Christian by top-heavy scores last week, had an opportunity to draw up almost even with the Baylorites. On Monday night the Methodists barge into College Station for a date with the Aggies.

Back on the home court at Dallas Friday night, Southern Methodist re-engages a Rice team they just turned back at Houston.

Record-Wrecker

The University of Oklahoma has the man it believes is the future world-record holder in the discus throw. John Pritchard, 198-pound youngster from Loup City, Neb., who will be eligible next spring, tossed the platter nearly 170 feet in an exhibition last year, the performance representing the best throw in the United States for 1937.

Emmet Girls Win 21st Cage Game

Cale High School Team Is Defeated by Score of 43 to 6

EMMET, Ark.—The Emmet senior girls basketball team Saturday won its 21st game of the season by defeating the Cale team by a score of 43 to 6.

Due to the sensational goal shooting of Chambliss, who made 14 points the first half, the Emmet team was able to maintain a lead of 24 to 6 at the half.

The second stringers of Emmet played the last half and the Cale team failed to score on them. E. Wells scored 12 points for the Emmet team in the last half. The passing of the entire Emmet team was swift and accurate.

The Emmet junior boys defeated the Cale juniors by the score of 18 to 8. Seal led the Emmet scoring with 8 points. Ward and Malone played an exceptionally good floor game. Ward also looping two field goals from the corner of the court.

The Cale senior boys defeated the Emmet seniors by a score of 23 to 17. Reedy of Cale was high scorer with 9 points.

Taylor Team Wins Tournament Honor

Walkerville and Village Also Win at Columbia Tourney

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Final games of the Columbia county basketball tournament were played here Saturday night with Taylor grabbing two championships and Walkerville and Village one each.

Taylor's junior boys and senior boys won the titles of their two divisions while Walkerville took first place in the junior girls event and Village the senior girls honors.

Following the close of the tourney, coaches picked all-county teams in each division. The teams were made up of the following players:

Junior boys: Horace Ewom, Walkerville; captain; Felix Maness, Union; center; Travis Green, Walkerville; Weldon Nipper, Magnolia and Jim Brown, Taylor.

Senior boys: Odie Brown, Taylor; captain; Glen Waggoner, Taylor; Wade Timmons, Walkerville; Joe Sanders, McNeil and Laddie McMahon, Magnolia.

Senior girls: Louis Reeves, Village; Cecil Hudson, Walkerville; captain; Cloie Edmunds, Walkerville; tied, Christine McDaniel, Magnolia; Sygual Powell, Taylor; Sylvia Sandlin, Taylor and Helen Chastain, Taylor.

Junior girls: Vernell Hauch, Taylor; captain; Claude Mae Johnson, Walkerville; Clonina Rogers, Village; Dorothy Wooley, Village; Cleolis Bradley, Walkerville; tied; Elsie Dickson, Mt. Vernon and LaVerne Souter, Taylor.

Empress Josephine, the romantic figures of the famed painted Winterhalter, and the war in Spain inspire some of the creations in the spring collection of Paris couturiers. The hourglass silhouette, siren sheaths, dramatic necklines, floating panels, dramatic dinner hats with removable brims, extremely short jackets, extremely long ones, underlined waists, longer bodices—these are other important new trends.

By Cable to NEA Service
PARIS—Fashions that glorify and dramatize the feminine form are the big news in spring collections.

Curves take the spotlight. Waistlines, bosoms and hips are emphasized. The hourglass figure is more than a humor—it's the silhouette of the moment, especially for evening, with the great houses of Chanel and Patou highlighting it most strongly.

The sex-appeal motif prevails throughout all collections. Lelong makes a spectacular evening gown of pink lace with bust cups the only lining for the bodice. Worth shows a feather brassiere, hanel uses 1870 decolletes—ultra nude. Patou tops immense, swaying, caporous evening skirts with faille bodices that lace at the sides, leaving backs quite bare.

Corset bodices in all collections are sensational, reminding one of the old whalebone affairs which ladies managed to get into only after much struggle with the bodice.

As always the influence of current headlines is prevalent. Molyneux shows a Spanish bolero and fringed-trimmed Spanish sailor. There are Chinese effects, of course. Also quantities of items obviously inspired by the Goya exhibition—for example, Bruyere's black lace gown with white lace mantilla.

Youthful no end are shoulder collars, head cups, narrow ribbon sashes in Chinese porcelain shades.

Winterhalter effects include a crinoline wedding dress with bouquets of lily of the valley on the skirts.

Second Empire trends are prevalent throughout all collections. These are expressed in wide skirts, slender waistlines, drop shoulders, in rich fabrics, such as limes, rustling taffetas, stiff satins, moires, and in delicate embroidery, ribbons, lace mitts.

Second in importance to the Second Empire silhouette is the sheathlike, siren one with slit skirt, halter neckline which leaves the back stark naked cachoon embroidery of gold or silver paillettes.

Mainbocher introduces "sound element"—tinkling embroidery on gowns, tiny bells on headresses.

Chiffon gowns with billowing skirts, over figure-molding sheaths, have high necklines, covered shoulders. Besides the Winterhalter silhouette, Molyneux shows bias-cut gowns—beltless, with seams and hemlines outlined in sequins. Also "don't dress for dinner" creations with heart-shaped or square decolletes, short sleeves. With these, there are evening hats with removable brims. Men who are tired of trying to dance with girls who wear wide brimmed hats will like this idea.

In addition to deep decolletes and romantic effects, Chanel shows slender sheaths, widened at hemlines only. With these, there are ribbon top-knots and flower halos.

Patou puts mile-wide pleated net on evening taffeta panels on meticulously molded gowns with cross-drape bodices.

Fitted suit jackets that are wrist-length or longer echo the corset silhouette. There are double and single breasted waistline and hip length jackets, too. Shirts are fourteen and fifteen inches from the floor. Chanel stresses the lengthened straight line, with concealed walking room developed in side pleats or flat box pleats, stitched down.

Twos in checks, stripes and flecks are featured. Bright tuxedos in pinks, mauves, blues and yellows are wonderfully flattering. Feather-weight wools, alpaca, surahs, silk twills, plain and printed shantung weaves, developed in wool, cotton, silk, are outstanding.

Several afternoon dresses are fitted about the hips, have underlined waistlines (sometimes with three belts), and thus make the upper half of the figure look very long.

Navy is shade of black. Both often are trimmed with bright green touches. Necklines are high. Sleeves are very short, elbow-length, old lengths and sometimes long. Long coats have gored skirts, with the seams plainly marked.

Chanel shows print blouses with suits, and lines the jackets with matching print.

Piquet's most sensational beach ensemble includes a knee-length jacket of natural shantung with star-shaped, bright green pocket, over a green top which closely resembles a man's vest and knee-length bloomers. The top of the bloomers miss the bottom of the vest by about two inches.

Patou's Bayadere striped, faille cut-away jacket (fingertip length) is worn with a black skirt with box pleats that start where the jacket ends.

Lelong's Josephine-type gown, of black and white striped fabric with small pink flowers scattered over the stripes, has a short back train with a slit underneath. It's worn with a long coat of black faille with square yoke and puff sleeves from which short strips of chiffon in green, blue, purple, cerise and pink flutter.

Bruyere's Eighteenth century robe de style of white upholstery satin has a long, tight bodice, short puff sleeves, full skirt and four bows of blue velvet on the center panel.

Maker of Champions
Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, basketball coach at the University of Kansas, probably holds a record for successful basketball coaching. In 27 years his teams have won 21 conference championships, including six in the 3-year span since the formation of the Big Six. Allen has a sound basis for instruction. In 1905 he was a member of a Kansas City athletic club team which took three straight games from the Buffalo Germans, then touring the country as "world champions."

Champion Base Thief
BROOKLYN—George (Jellius) Cisar, Brooklyn outfield recruit, from Clinton, La., of the Three-Eye League, stole 63 bases last year, leading the next man in the circuit by 20.

Would Make Good or Quit Baseball

Russell Van Atta Has Proposition to Make to Browns

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(P)—Russell Van Atta, left-handed pitcher who sent back a contract offering what he called a "bat boy's salary," has a proposition to make the St. Louis Browns.

"All I'm asking the club is this," he said. "If workouts in spring training show that my arm is okay, I expect the same salary I received last year. If a test reveals that I'm through as a pitcher, then in all fairness to the club and myself I will give up baseball."

Hard luck has dogged Van Atta since the winter of 1936 when his pitching hand was burned in a fire that destroyed his Lake Mohawk, N. J., home. He was with the New York Yankees then, and winning his share of games. Last season Van Atta took part in 16 games with Browns, winning one losing two, before he underwent an operation for the removal of a growth from the elbow of his throwing arm.

Van Atta will be on hand when the St. Louis Cardinals start spring training here.

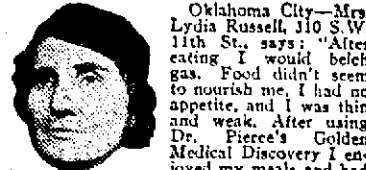

"I'm going to work out with the Cardinals for a few days to see how the old soup bone is working," he said. "I haven't even tried to throw a pebble in six months. I'm anxious to see how the arm has responded to treatment."

"The way I feel now, I think I could pitch both ends of a double-header any day of the week. The pain I suffered last season is gone."

Van Atta believed the Browns got the best of the deal when they sent Catcher Rollie Hemsley to Cleveland for Catcher Billy Sullivan, infielder Roy Hughes and Pitcher Ed Cole. He believes St. Louis has plenty of punch and defensive strength but lacks pitching material.

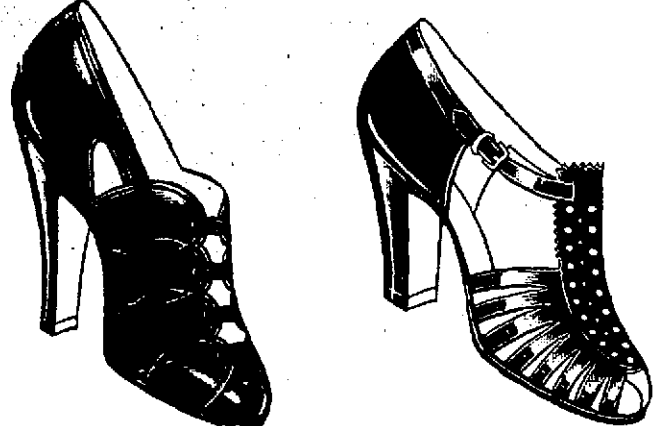

Of the 40 students in the Gruver (La.) high school, 32 are playing basketball either on the boys' or girls' squads. Physicians' orders restrain the other eight, who are girls, from active participation. This, however does not keep the girls from entering into the fun. After home games, they serve refreshments to the teams.

Dramatic Rescue from Icy Death

Marooned on a mid-stream rock for nearly nine hours, with the raging Merrimack River barring rescue boats, Edward Giblin, Lowell, Mass., musician, is shown above being saved by U. S. Coast-guardsmen in a dramatic breeches buoy rescue. Giblin, who, it is thought, fell into the river above the roaring Pawtucket Falls (seen in background) and was swept over, held onto a jagged rock until a line was cast to him. Clinging to the line he was hauled to the reef 75 feet from shore. A breeches buoy was rigged and Giblin's half-frozen form was lifted into the bucket, which rescuers quickly hauled to shore. Giblin, shown above lying inertly in the buoy, was too exhausted to tell how he got into the predicament. So alarming was his position on the rock that a sound truck had been placed on nearby Pawtucket Bridge, from which it was planned to have a Catholic priest pronounce the last rites of the church over the roar of the falls.

Baseball Players Heading to Camps

Work of Getting Ready for League Races Is Underway

NEW YORK—(P)—The time has come for the pitchers, catchers, managers and managers to trade such things as winter overcoats, nauting rifles and hot stove cracker barrels for tickets to somewhere in Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, California or, if it concerns the Chicago Cubs, Catalina Island.

Many already are either at their training camps or are on the way there.

Of course, it means that the off-season lazing around is finished, and that from here on in, the business of balls and strikes must be strictly minded. But it's nice work if you can get it, the pay is good, and there's plenty to eat. So who's going to fuss about such hard labor as chasing a horsehide sphere around some sunny lot in Dixie.

For instance, while a lot of us stay up North, wrapped in the chin in woollens and well-supplied with aspirin, there'll be a considerably more fortunate party of New York Giants who can take their winter or leave it alone, showing off Tuesday night for let's say, Ark. Two catchers and five pitchers will be in the party, along with Secretary Eddie Brannick (lucky guy) and Vice President Leo Bondy.

At the sea, they'll pick up Stringbean Cliff Melton who pulled in earlier. The whole bunch will stop off for several days of thawing out process before getting along to the National League champions' training camp at Baton Rouge, La., where Coach Pancho Snyder is already getting things ready for the arrival of the batterymen, February 23.

land camp, although the Detroiters aren't due there until March 6. Or shed a tear for Jimmy Dykes. Manager James hopped a train for the White Sox camp at Pasadena.

Manager Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals left the Frisch residence at New Rochelle, N. Y., and headed for the gas-house gang's layout at St. Petersburg, where he'll find Gas-house Gangster No. 1, Ducky Medwick, there before him.

Clark Griffith is down at his Senator's camp at Orlando.

Bob Feller, of Van Meter, Iowa, starts driving in his big new car in the general direction of Miami, before moving over to the Cleveland Camp at New Orleans. General Manager Billy Evers is getting the Red Sox camp ready at Sarasota, while Manager Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx have started conditioning at Hot Springs, Va.

As a group, the Giants are the earliest under way this year, with their trek to Hot Springs, but as usual, Connie Mack and his Athletics start the ball-rolling so far as training camp squads are concerned. Mack leaves Philadelphia next Saturday with his pitchers and catchers and will open the Lake Charles, La., camp February 22. From then on, the various clubs will be checking in and opening things up almost daily. Here's the list.

Athletics arrive February 22, Lake Charles, La.

Bees arrive February 24, Bradenton, Fla.

Cubs arrive February 24, Satalina Island.

Phillies arrive February 25, Biloxi, Miss.

Reds arrive February 26, Tampa, Fla.

Yankees arrive February 27, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Nats arrive February 27, Orlando, Fla.

Johnny Mize, the St. Louis Cardinal first-baseman, made two unassisted double plays on August 13. This all-time record was first set by Pop Anson in 1891. Since then it has been equalled several times.
